

Buddhist Art Retreat

BINTAN ISLAND (Singapore) Thu Jan 11 - Sun Jan 14, 2018

Learn to draw The Buddha or White Tara

In this extended thangka weekend retreat (starting on Thu) you will learn to draw Buddha Shakyamuni (the one most often referred to as THE Buddha) or White Tara according to traditional Tibetan Buddhist thangkas (scroll paintings).

It is held on the beautiful Island of Bintan (at the Grand Lagoi Village, formerly known as Swiss-belhotel lagoi Bay), a short boat ride from the city of Singapore. Transfers, lodging, all meals and use of materials are included.

The course is suitable for everyone, including beginners with no drawing experience:

- 1) Beginners will learn to draw the Face of the Buddha and the complete Buddha Shakyamuni after that.
The official name of the Buddha is 'Buddha Shakyamuni', and the Buddhist philosophy as we know it in its current form is based on his teachings. During the drawing sessions there's a lot of individual guidance by Carmen.
- 2) Students who have already drawn the Face of the Buddha in a previous course with Carmen will learn to draw the complete Buddha Shakyamuni, including Lotus, Lion Throne and offerings.
- 3) Students who have already drawn Buddha Shakyamuni in a previous course with Carmen may opt for White Tara.
The female Buddha White Tara (Tib. Drolkar) is one of the main longevity deities in the Tibetan Buddhist pantheon. Her practice can be done to prolong your life and to overcome life-threatening obstacles such as illnesses.

About the artist: Carmen Mensink is an internationally renowned painter of Thangkas, the traditional Tibetan scroll paintings of Buddhas and mandalas. She is based in Amsterdam, the Netherlands, and teaches this beautiful art, as well as Buddhist meditation and philosophy, at museums, universities, and Buddhist Centers around the world: www.tibetanbuddhistart.com
